PREFACE.

THIS volume contains two works which, though separate, are arranged for combined use.

The first is a Table of all the Statutes, arranged in order of date.

The second is an Index to enactments in force.

The Chronological Table is framed with these objects :—

(1.) To show what Acts are not in force, and how the same have ceased to be in force (by express repeal or otherwise) :

(2.) With respect to Acts wholly or partly in force to give (column 2) the respective heads in the Index under which the enactments in force (with other enactments on the same subject) will be found :

(3.) With respect to Acts partly in force to give (column 3) any express partial repeals thereof (but not to give other operations on Acts wholly or partly in force,—as amendments, extensions, or perpetuations,—these being traceable by the Index).

The Index is framed with the object of indicating generally the subject matter of enactments in force, not of giving a detailed analysis of each Act.

It is intended not to furnish an exhaustive summary of the Statute Law under each head, but to serve as a guide to a person desiring to find out the enactments bearing on a given subject.*

The Chronological Table and Index are based on the edition of the Record Commissioners known as The Statutes of the Realm, as far as that edition extends, namely, to the end of the reign of Anne. Thenceforth, Ruffhead's Edition, by Serjeant Runnington, 1786, has been followed, as far as it extends, namely, to 25 Geo. 3. From that time downwards it is believed all editions are alike.

The variances between the Statutes of the Realm and other editions are considerable. The Statute Law Revision Acts show, for the periods to which they relate, the variances between the Statutes of the Realm and Ruffhead's

* For example, the entries under the head Forgery are not a summary of all Acts relating to forgery : and a person wanting to know what are the Acts relating to forgery of the seal of a particular court, or of a particular species of document, must look to the head under which that court or species of document is indexed, not to the head Forgery. So, again, in the case of Justices of the Peace, the enactments relative to their duties will be found distributed under the heads relating to particular subjects, and not collected under the general head of Justice of the Peace.

Edition (above-mentioned), and this course has been followed in the present works. The variances are shown in footnotes or (in the third column of the Chronological Table) in parentheses, and there is prefixed a complete table of variances in a double form, one following the order of the Statutes of the Realm, the other that of Ruffhead's Edition.

The Chronological Table and Index (each according to its scope) cover the whole period from the date of the earliest Statute of the Parliament of England to the end of the latest Session of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, namely, the Session of 1869 (32 & 33 Vict.).

Ante-Union Acts of the respective Parliaments of Scotland and Ireland are not comprised in the Index, nor is a list of them given in the Chronological Table.

One class of Acts affecting Ireland has required special treatment, namely, the Acts of the Parliament of England which were extended to Ireland by one general enactment of the Parliament of Ireland, 10 Hen. 7. c. 22., Poynings Act. In relation to Ireland these are properly to be regarded as ante-Union Acts of the Parliament of Ireland. Consequently (1) they are not indexed as affecting Ireland; (2) in the second column of the Chronological Table they are treated as not in force, if they have ceased to be in force in England (without reference to the question whether they are still in force in Ireland or have been repealed as regards Ireland by Acts of the Parliament of Ireland).

The Chronological Table comprises all Acts printed in the Statutes of the Realm, and after the end of that edition all Acts classed by the King's or Queen's Printers as Public or as Public General.

Many, however, of these Acts cannot, for the present purpose, be regarded as public Acts, affecting the community generally, being in their nature special or private Acts, relating to particular persons or places, or to private concerns. Acts of this kind are distinguished by the italic entries Local, Personal, Private, in the second column of the Chronological Table (except in a few cases in which they are shown to be not in force); and, as a general rule, the Table does not show repeals affecting these Acts; and they are omitted from the Index.

In the second column of the Chronological Table the letters S., I., C., are used to indicate Scotland, Ireland, and the Colonies. When one of these letters precedes the word descriptive of the subject or head, it indicates that the Act will be found under that head in the part of the Index which relates exclusively to Scotland, to Ireland, or to the Colonies. When one of these letters follows the word descriptive of the subject or head, it indicates that the Act will be found under that head in an Appendix to the Index, under the sub-head Scotland, Ireland, or the Colonies.

With respect to entries in the third column of the Chronological Table, the following has been the ordinary practice :

(1.) In a few instances, Acts have been repealed in part after having been wholly repealed ;—in such cases the later partial repeal is disregarded.

(2.) In other instances, Acts have been repealed more than once ;—in such cases a discretion has been exercised as to which repealing Act should be entered, and in some cases more than one are entered.

(3.) Where a repeal has been made nugatory by an express or implied revival, the repeal is disregarded.

(4.) Where a temporary Act has been repealed by an Act also temporary but lasting longer than the original Act would have lasted if not repealed, the repeal is treated as effectual.

(5.) Where an Act has been partially repealed and afterwards wholly repealed, the total repeal only is entered, except in the case of a partial repeal more extensive territorially than the total repeal.

(6.) In like manner partial repeals, covered by later partial repeals, are frequently omitted.

(7.) The partial determination, otherwise than by express repeal, of an Act which has not wholly ceased to be in force, is not generally noticed.

As regards repeals (total or partial) of Acts extended to Ireland by Poynings Act, the practice has been as follows :

(1.) Where the repeal is in terms limited territorially, so as not to apply to Ireland, the limitation is noticed.

(2.) Where the repeal is not in terms limited territorially it is entered as unrestricted (even though the repealing Act is an Act of the Parliament of England or of Great Britain, therefore presumably not applying to Ireland).

(3.) Where a partial repeal by an Act of the Parliament of England or of Great Britain, not in terms limited territorially, has been followed by a total repeal as to England only, the partial repeal as well as the total repeal has been entered, though the partial repeal may not in fact extend to Ireland.

Some Acts passed after Poynings Act by the Parliament of England or of Great Britain purport to extend beyond England. Repeals of these Acts effected by The Statute Law Revision Act, 1863 (ending with the reign of James the Second) are entered as unrestricted, though the repealing Act is in terms limited to England. Repeals of these Acts effected by Acts, other than The Statute Law Revision Act, 1863, which are in terms limited territorially, have been dealt with thus :

(1.) The territorial limitation of the repeal is noticed in case the Act repealed had a more extensive operation territorially than the repeal.

(2.) In other cases the repeal is entered as unrestricted.

The Index is divided into four parts:—

(1.) An Index to the Statutes, except those relating exclusively to Scotland, Ireland, or the Colonies:

(2.) An Index to Statutes relating exclusively to Scotland:

(3.) An Index to Statutes relating exclusively to Ireland:

(4.) An Index to Statutes relating exclusively to the Colonies.

The first part comprises (a) the Statutes of the Parliament of England, (b) the Statutes of the Parliament of Great Britain, relating either to England or to Great Britain, and (c) the Statutes of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, relating either to England, or to Great Britain, or to England and Ireland, or to the United Kingdom (with or without the Colonies).

Where an Act indexed in the first part relates not only to England but also to Scotland, this is indicated in that part by the insertion of (S.) in connection with the entry; so, as to Ireland, by the insertion of (I.); so, as to both Scotland and Ireland, by the insertion of (S. I.).

The second part comprises the Statutes of the Parliament of Great Britain, or of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, relating exclusively to Scotland.

This part must, in order that a full view may be obtained of post-Union enactments in force relating to Scotland, be read in conjunction with the first part. The two parts are connected by references in the second part, thus,—see also E.; E. meaning here the first part of the Index (that which comprises Acts relating to England), and the references being, unless otherwise expressed, to the same head in that part.

The third part comprises the Statutes of the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland relating exclusively to Ireland. This part is connected with the first in the same way in which (as before explained) the second is connected with the first.

The fourth part comprises the Statutes of the several Parliaments of England, of Great Britain, and of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, relating exclusively to the Colonies (which are for this purpose treated as including not only India, but also China and some other foreign parts, with reference to British subjects).

This part does not comprise Acts which do not in terms apply to the Colonies, or any of them, or have not been extended to them, or any of them, by express Imperial enactment, notwithstanding that some of the Acts not comprised therein do or may apply to the Colonies, or some of them, as part of the general law of the Empire, or otherwise. Nor does this part comprise Acts which have been repealed as regards the United Kingdom, notwithstanding that some of those Acts do or may apply to the Colonies, or some of them.

As the Chronological Table gives all useful information as to express partial repeals, the same information is not needed to be given in the Index. Therefore, as a general rule, Acts containing partial repeals are not indexed, unless they also amend.*

In the Index the abbreviation "&c." used thus—"s. 10., &c."—indicates that sect. 10. of the Act referred to is the principal or first section relating to the subject, and that other sections of the Act relate to the same subject; the same abbreviation used thus—"Acting of plays, &c."—indicates matter ejusdem generis.

The Index is followed by a series of Appendices.

The first Appendix gives a list of popular names of Acts (for example, Bill of Rights, Lord Campbell's Act, Mortmain Act, Thellusson Act), with references to the Acts by session and chapter.

The other Appendices give references to various kinds of Acts which have been classed among the Public or Public General Acts, but the contents of which, for various reasons (such as will ordinarily be obvious), it has not been considered desirable to examine and index in detail. Some of these may not be in force.

The preparation and publication of the Chronological Table and Index have been undertaken by Her Majesty's Government, in pursuance of a suggestion made by Lord Cairns to the Lord Chancellor (Lord Chelmsford); and they have been prepared under the direction of a Committee consisting of Sir John G. Shaw Lefevre, Sir Thomas Erskine May, Mr. G. K. Rickards, Mr. H. Thring, and Mr. F. S. Reilly.

The Chronological Table has been framed by Mr. Arthur John Wood (principally from materials collected in the work of Statute Law Revision); the references, however, to the Index in the second column being supplied by the framers of the Index.

The Index has been framed by Mr. Henry Jenkyns, with the assistance of Mr. Chaloner W. Chute.

11th January 1870.

* For example, where an Act was originally temporary, and the section which made it temporary has been repealed, without more, the repealing Act is not indexed.
